Report of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights pursuant to paragraph 5 (f) of Commission on Human Rights resolution 1997/76

Introduction

1. The Commission on Human Rights at its fifty-third session adopted on 16 April 1997 resolution 1997/76 in which the Commission decided to encourage the High Commissioner, within the mandate as set out in General Assembly resolution 48/141 of 20 December 1993, to continue to play an active role in promoting and protecting all human rights, including in the prevention of human rights violations throughout the world, and reiterated the need to provide all necessary financial, material and personnel resources to the Office of the High Commissioner to enable it to carry out all mandates efficiently, effectively and expeditiously in line with the human rights programme as adopted by the General Assembly; reiterated its request to the Secretary-General to provide the human rights programme with all the necessary human, financial and material resources from future regular budgets of the United Nations, and in particular to take this into account in the budget for the 1998-1999 biennium; requested the Secretary-General to continue to do his utmost to increase cooperation and coordination on human rights issues among the various other departments, offices and agencies of the United Nations as well as to ensure the participation of the Office of the High Commissioner in all mechanisms related to the follow-up to major United Nations conferences; invited the High Commissioner to make available to all States, on a regular basis, information on voluntary contributions and their allocation, and to invite all States to all briefing meetings and appeals, including those with States contributing extrabudgetary funds; requested the High Commissioner to make available on an annual basis a report on the staff of the Office of the High Commissioner reflecting, inter alia, grade, nationality and gender, including with regard to non-regular staff.

2. Finally, in the same resolution, the Commission requested the High Commissioner to submit to it at its fifty-fourth session a report on the implementation of that resolution and to include in that report, inter alia, information on:

(a) Voluntary contributions, including their share in the overall budget of the human rights programme and their allocation;

(b) An assessment of the effectiveness of ongoing field operations.

The present report is submitted pursuant to that request.

Activities of the High Commissioner in promoting and protecting all human rights

3. In accordance with paragraph 5 of General Assembly resolution 48/141 the High Commissioner submits on a regular basis reports to the Commission on Human Rights, the Economic and Social Council and the General Assembly on the activities carried out within the mandate of the High Commissioner. These reports include the activities relating to the prevention of human rights violations throughout the world. The most recent report to the Commission on Human Rights is contained in document E/CN.4/1998/122.

Financial, material and personnel resources

4. The General Assembly at its fifty-second session adopted the regular budget of the United Nations for the biennium 1998-1999 by its resolution 52/220 of 22 December 1997. The financial, material and personnel resources available to the human rights programme from the regular budget are described in that resolution and the documents referred to therein.

Increased coordination between agencies, departments and programmes

5. The Secretary-General in his reform proposals presented in July 1997 stressed the importance of human rights as an integral part of the promotion of peace and security, economic prosperity and social equity. The Secretary-General set as a major task for the United Nations the enhancement of its human rights programme and its full integration into the broad range of the Organization's activities. Thus, the High Commissioner for Human Rights is a member of the four relevant Executive Committees - on Peace and Security, Economic and Social Affairs, Development Cooperation and Humanitarian Affairs - and of the Senior Management Group which meets weekly to advise the Secretary-General on important management and policy issues. The High Commissioner also takes part in relevant meetings of the Administrative Committee on Coordination.

6. In the framework of the reform programme, the Secretary-General asked the High Commissioner to participate in every stage of the Organization's activities in relation to actual or potential conflicts or post-conflict situations that had a human rights dimension. The High Commissioner was also asked to undertake an analysis of the technical assistance provided by United Nations entities in areas relating to human rights and to formulate proposals for improving complementarity of action. One of the objectives of the reform is to enable the Office of the High Commissioner to provide advice for the design of technical assistance projects and to participate in needs assessment missions. More information on this matter is contained in the report of the High Commissioner to the Commission.

Voluntary contributions and their allocation

7. Information on voluntary contributions and their allocation are to be found annexed to this report. The High Commissioner has given importance to involving all States in appeals for voluntary contributions in order to enlarge the donor base as much as possible and provides information to all States on these matters including inviting all States to meetings regarding appeals for voluntary funds.

Information on the staff of the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights

8. The most recent information on the staff of the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights, including grade, nationality and gender and relating to regular and non-regular staff, is contained in the report of the High Commissioner on that subject (E/CN.4/1998/52).

Assessment of the effectiveness of ongoing field operations

9. The effectiveness of field operations conducted by the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights is currently the subject of a review and evaluation process. The results will be considered carefully by the High Commissioner and the conclusions made available in an appropriate manner.
